Did you know that the very first recorded messages in bottles were sent out in 310 BC by the philosopher Theophrastus? Since then, messages in bottles have become a form of communicating war tactics, shipwreck, and even love. A short discussion on messages in bottles is apt for this next story.

This is a classic example of how fate would find a way to redeem an underdog. There were this two fisherman friends whose lives were changed by messages in bottles. In 2006, one of the two friends found a 92-year old message in a bottle. This earned him a coveted spot in the Guinness Book of World Records for the oldest message in a bottle ever found. He wasn't very nice about it, as he would brag about it to his friend, which unsurprisingly annoyed the latter.

The latter friend must have been born under a lucky star because six years later, a 98-year old message in a bottle fell into his lap. Yes, he kicked his friend off the Guinness Book of World Records for the oldest message in a bottle ever recovered.
