Truly, survival is a universal instinct. Just take it from this deer in New York. According to reports, a deer that was badly injured from being stuck by a car managed to bring itself to an emergency room. The appearance of an unlikely patient in a hospital puzzled the patient and authorities that witnessed the incident. The authorities escorted the deer to the parking lot through a stretcher. Animal control officers were then contacted to treat the deer. Unfortunately, the officers determined that the deer's injuries were too serious to treat. The deer had to be put down.
